IWGB COMMUNITY

The University of London branch of IWGB organises some of the UK's most hyper-exploited workers, most of whom are women and migrants.

These are the people who clean the toilets of London, sweep its floors and carry out the portering. They travel on the early-morning buses or trains, when most of London is still in bed, and spend their days doing back-breaking shifts for two or three different employers. To most people they are one thing: invisible.

With next to no resources we have already achieved impressive and life-changing results. Now, we need your support to take our struggle to the next stage.

By joining the UoL branch's IWGB Community and giving whatever you can, you'll be helping us to make that difference.

ONCE YOU HAVE JOINED...

As thanks for your support, IWGB Community members will enjoy:

- a regular email newsletter, keeping you up-to-date on the hugely important projects your money helps us to pay for
- free entry to all UoL IWGB parties and fundraising events
- IWGB Community socials, where you can meet and connect with other like-minded supporters of the branch.

Your donation makes a real contribution. Every penny we receive will help us to:

- fund the IWGB Legal Department, which coordinates the case work for hundreds of members across London
- pay for campaign organisers who will help run the campaigns (for better pay, conditions, and respect) that our members depend upon
- rent a small office in which we house the Legal Department, hold employment rights talks and where our members meet
- support strike action taken by low-paid members, so that working rights are not just for those who can afford them.

WHAT WE DO...

- Since our foundation in 2013, we've represented scores of members at disciplinaries and grievances – saving jobs, ending bullying and building confidence.
- Through the IWGB-supported 3 Cosas campaign, outsourced workers at the University of London, LSHTM and the Royal College of Music now get proper sick pay and holiday pay. We're now taking this fight to other Universities in London too.
- We've worked with the WEA to provide our members with accredited English classes, and organise regular conversation classes and language exchanges in both English and Spanish.
- We've built a campaigning structure (including social media, close partnerships with student bodies and other unions, and support from MPs) dedicated to improving working conditions, protecting jobs, and raising awareness of the issues our members face. Through us, and through our supporters, they can have a voice.
